

VESSEL SINKS; A HUNDRED DIE

Channel Steamer Is Wrecked Off The Northern Coast Of France During Night.

ONLY SIX PERSONS ARE RESCUED

Survivors Found Clinging to Mast Which Was Then Out Of Water--Boat Struck While Passengers Were All Asleep.

St. Malo, Nov. 20.—Definite information of the steamer Hilda is lacking. Reports this morning from various points on the coast state that 51 bodies were recovered. Fifteen were washed ashore at Brest.

Details Meagre.
St. Malo, Nov. 20.—It is difficult to obtain even the most meagre details of the occurrences aboard the Hilda. It is now stated Captain Gregory fired rockets which were answered by the keepers of the Jardin light-house. Apparently the replies were unheeded or misinterpreted. So far 57 bodies have been washed ashore, among them being Captain Gregory and Chief Officer Pearson.

Lost His Bearings.
St. Malo, Nov. 20.—Evidence is that Gregory lost his bearing in the driving snow storm and struck the rocks and sunk. The water reached the boilers, causing the explosion which broke the ship into three pieces. The body of the mate found held in his dead hand a life belt, which he had not time to adjust. It is presumed the casualties will be 99.

The Hilda, which was owned by the London and Southwestern Railroad company, sailed from Southampton for St. Malo Friday night with more than 120 on board, including passengers and crew.

French reports of the disaster declare 123 lives were lost. At the offices of the railroad company here it is estimated ninety-four persons were drowned.

More than sixty of the passengers of the Hilda were Breton peasants who were on their way home with the proceeds of the sale in England of their onion harvest, on which their families depend for their living through winter. All but five of these perished.

Twenty names were on the first cabin passenger list of the steamer. These included several English butlers. Among them were the Hon. Mrs. Butler, sister-in-law of Lord Lanesborough, and Col. Follet.

English Officers Are Lost.
Though it is not certain that these were actually on board, they were expected to travel by the Hilda, and it is known that all the first class passengers were English officers and others who were coming to rejoin their families or to spend the season at St. Malo and Dinard, opposite St. Malo.

Of all who left Southampton on the wrecked steamer only six persons definitely are known to have been saved.

HELD UP AND LOST JEWISH FUND MONEY

Israel Cohen of Joliet, Illinois, Is Compelled to Disgorge Much Coin.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Chicago, Ill., Nov. 20.—Israel Cohen of Joliet, Ill., was held up last night by two negroes at West Twelfth and Canal streets and robbed of three hundred and fifty dollars, which it is said Cohen intended for the Jewish relief fund. Cohen attempted to resist and a revolver was placed against his heart and he was forced to be passive. He was led into a hallway and searched.

Sailed for Gibraltar.
New York, Nov. 22.—Prince Louis, with his fleet sailed for Gibraltar this morning.

It is reported that five officers landed on a boat on the coast of France, but this report has not been confirmed. The wreck of the St. Hilda was discovered by the steamer Ada of the same line, on leaving St. Malo for Southampton Sunday. To the mast of the sunken vessel, which was still above water, six survivors were clinging. These were rescued by the Ada's boats. They proved to be five Breton farmers and a sailor.

Survivors say that after the St. Hilda left Southampton a heavy fog set in, rendering navigation dangerous, and it was compelled to anchor. Saturday morning the steamer again started. In the meantime the weather had become rough, a gale, accompanied by snowstorms, blowing.

Jardin light was sighted late Saturday night through the thick snow then falling. The passengers and part of the crew were asleep and never knew what happened. Apparently the St. Hilda, after making the light, lay to, for it did not strike until early Sunday morning.

Broke Amidships.
The rock which tore the bottom out of it, is within a hundred yards of the lighthouse. Presumably the pilot, who accompanied the steamer from Southampton, mistook the distance owing to the snow.

The survivors say the shock broke the St. Hilda amidships. A majority of those on board were washed out of it when the hull parted. The time between its striking and sinking was so short that there was not time to lower all the lifeboats. Two, however, got away. One of these has since been found empty, and the other is reported to have landed five persons at St. Gervan.

The delay in the arrival of the St. Hilda, at first inspired a little anxiety, as there was dreadful weather in the channel, and as every one had full confidence in its captain, Gregory, an experienced man, who was likely to exercise caution in approaching the dangerous coast of Brittany, which he had known for thirty years.

The disaster was first suspected through the washing ashore of a body, and the port authorities immediately sent out a tug. It was then learned the St. Hilda was wrecked on a treacherous reef close to the island of Cézembre, called "Les Portes."

Many bodies have been washed ashore at different points, some wearing life belts.

LONDON POOR AGAIN SEEK SOME REDRESS

Hold Immense Meeting in Hyde Park and Pass Strong Resolutions.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]
London, Nov. 20.—Another remarkable demonstration of the unemployed poor, showing the dissatisfaction to the attitude assumed by the government toward the demands for relief, was made today. Thousands of men marched through the streets to Hyde park, where a meeting was held. Violent speeches were made and a resolution declared "An unending war" upon capitalists and the system. There was no disorder.

Frederick Andrus, for forty years a pianotuner of Bloomington, Ill., and one of its best-known citizens, died last night, aged 69 years.

JAP POLICEMEN SUBDUE MUTINY

Kiu Kitsu Experts Board Russian Ships And Compel Rioters To Obey Orders.

THE REFRACTORY SOLDIERS YIELDED

Officers Call For Help When The Men Rebel, After Hearing News From Vladivostok—Clever Wrestlers Participated.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]

Nagasaki, Nov. 20.—Japanese policemen have been called upon to quell a mutiny in the Russian army. Re-enforced by a small number of soldiers and 100 constables, a squad of jiu jitsu experts from the police department of this city went aboard the Russian volunteer fleet steamships Vladimir and Baroneji Sunday and quickly subjected 500 mutinous soldiers of the czar's Manchurian army who had rebelled against their commanders. Vice Admiral Rojstvensky is on board the Baroneji.

The mutineers were prisoners of war who were being conveyed to Vladivostok from Japanese ports, where they had been incarcerated since their capture.

Mutineers Obtain Arms.
In some manner the liberated prisoners obtained small arms, and, fired by the news from Vladivostok and European Russia, they attempted to take possession of the two vessels. But for the fact that the ships were near this port they undoubtedly would have been successful.

The Russian officers, however, managed to hold the mutineers in check until within signaling distance, and when they made known their plight to the port authorities, by means of the international code tugs were dispatched immediately with policemen, constables and soldiers.

Destroyers Surround Ships.
Four Japanese torpedo-boat destroyers also were sent to the transports. The Russian rebels showed themselves no match for the Japanese when the "wily little policemen sprang" upon the companionships of the two ships and plunged among the mutineers.

By applying jiu jitsu the Japanese subjected the Russians in short order without calling upon their armed comrades, the soldiers and constabulary.

MAKE A PROTEST AGAINST THE ESCH-TOWNSEND BILL

Railroad Men All Over The Country Unite To Make a Formal Protest To Congress.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, Nov. 20.—Statements issued yesterday by officials of the five organizations of railway workers show that the protest against the Esch-Townsend bill made by the delegation of railway workers at the White House this week, is backed up by the solid action of practically all the local bodies in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland.

Through local officials six hundred and fifty-four divisions and lodges of the orders have placed themselves on record as emphatically opposed to any legislative action that might curtail the right of the railroads to adjust their rates to commercial conditions or to control their respective incomes. The sentiment of these organizations is shown in the following statement issued by Jeremiah Harris, chairman of the legislative board of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers for the State of New York:

"Members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, to a man, are opposed to any legislation that will curtail the powers of their employers in respect of their earning capacity, or diminish the freedom of their control over their property; therefore the brotherhood opposes the Esch-Townsend bill and will oppose any and every law to give the control of railway rates into the hands of the government or any body other than the railroad owners and managers. The question of railway rate regulation was discussed at the annual convention of the brotherhood of locomotive engineers at Los Angeles, Cal., last year, and the stand which we have taken now was decided upon. The conductors, firemen and trainmen have since taken the same view of the question and the resolutions that have been adopted by divisions of the other three bodies are along precisely the same lines which we decided for our own action. The sentiment embodied in our resolution represents the opinion of seventy-five thousand men of the brotherhood of engineers alone, representing every railroad and every state and community in the United States."

The Order of Railway Conductors, through James J. Dowling, general chairman of the order, of the Lehigh system, issued this statement:

A VICTORY FOR SENATOR ELKINS

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL STARTS SUITS UNDER HIS STATUTE

AGAINST PABST BREWING CO.

The Milwaukee Refrigerator Transit Company and Seven Railroads—
Other Washington Gossip.

Washington, D. C. — Special Correspondence. — The institution of a suit by the Attorney General against the Pabst Brewing Company, the Milwaukee Refrigerator Transit Company and seven railroads, is regarded as being virtually a personal triumph for Senator Elkins, of West Virginia, the author of the famous Elkins Act, and his associates on the Senate Committee on Commerce, who perfected it and engineered its passage. Much complaint has been made that through the ownership of private cars and the operation of private car lines, large shippers have secured rebates from the railroad companies in the guise of payments for rentals, commissions, etc., for the use of such cars. The Elkins act was designed to put a stop to all such practices along with terminal and switching charges and the custom of dividing the freight charges between a short line owner and the shipper and the main line so that the short line received much more than its proper percentage. For this purpose its language was made as broad as possible so as to cover rebating "by any device whatever" and Senator Elkins and his associates on the committee which reported the bill, believed Congress had thus provided an ample and thoroughly adequate remedy for the evils complained of, it being expected that the legal branch of the government would secure a prompt and vigorous enforcement of the law which Senator Elkins and his associates had placed on the statute books.

It is not unnatural, therefore, if Senator Elkins and the other members of the committee, have felt somewhat "miffed" that without giving the Elkins act, which embodied their ideas for correcting the private car, switching, private terminal and other similar abuses, a trial, a demand should be made on them for additional legislation. Especially was this the case when railroad attorneys and witnesses repeatedly advanced the argument that as the government was making no attempt to apply the act, why should Congress enact additional legislation merely that it should also be a dead letter on the statute books. Such things were not pleasant to the ears of Senators Elkins, Cullom, Foraker, Keen and others who had endorsed the Elkins act under the impression that it would be effective, and it is an open secret that some of them have heretofore felt that it would have been more courteous of Congress if the Elkins act had been given a fair trial by the Department of Justice and the Interstate Commerce Commission before being condemned as inefficient. This action of Attorney-General Moody cannot fail therefore, to be pleasing to the senators as evidencing a sincere desire on the part of the administration to reach the private car

RULERS OF THE WORLD.

Meat Eating Nations Are the Leaders in Every Branch of Human Achievements.

The ruling nations of the world are meat eaters and history records that they always have been.

Vegetarians and food cranks may explain this in any way they choose, but the facts remain that the Americans, English, French, Russians and Germans are meat-eating nations, and they are also the most energetic and most progressive.

The principal food of the heroic Boer soldier, known as Biltong, is a sort of dried beef, affording a great deal of nourishment in a highly concentrated form.

The weak races of people are the rice-eating Chinese, Hindoos, and Siamese, regarded since the dawn of history as non-progressive, superstitious and inferior physically and mentally to the meat-eating nations who dominate them.

The structure of the teeth plainly indicates that human beings should subsist upon a variety of food, meat, fruit and grains, and it is unhygienic to confine one's diet to any one of those classes to the exclusion of another.

Meat is the most concentrated and most easily digested of foods, but our manner of living is often so unnatural that the digestive organs refuse to properly digest meat, eggs and similar nutritious and wholesome food, but it is not because such food is unwholesome, but the real reason is that the stomach lacks, from disease or weakness, some necessary digestive element; hence arising indigestion and, later on, chronic dyspepsia.

Nervous people should eat plenty of meat, convalescents should make meat the principal food, hard-working people have to do so, and brain-workers and office men should eat, not so much meat, but at least once a day, and to insure its perfect digestion one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets should be taken after each meal, to assist them supply the pepsin, gastric juice and fruit acids, lacking in every case of stomach trouble.

Nervous dyspepsia, catarrh of stomach, gastritis, sour stomach, gas and acidity are only different names for indigestion, the failure to digest wholesome food, and the use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets cures them all because, by affording perfect digestion, the stomach has a chance to rest and recover its natural tone and vigor.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the real household medicine; it is as safe and pleasant for the stomach as the baby as it is for the imperfect digestion of its grand sire.

They are not a cathartic, but a digestive, and no pill habit can ever follow their use; the only habit Stuart's Tablets induce is the habit of good digestion and consequently good health.

lines under the Elkins act, and that the Attorney General is inclined to share the views of the senators instrumental in securing the passage of the act that it will be efficacious if properly enforced.

It is expected that an effort will be made in certain quarters to discredit the action of the Attorney General by raising the cry that the suit was brought at this time merely to excite public clamor against the private car lines for the effect it would have on Congressional action. Such a charge, if true, would be monstrous, as indicating that the administration was prostituting its resources and fouling the stream of justice to accomplish its ends. There is no ground for any belief that Attorney General Moody is acting otherwise than in good faith and that he has instituted these proceedings in the firm belief that the private car lines, hitherto apparently invincible can be dealt with by the strong arm of the law under the Elkins act. Mr. Moody points out that the Elkins law provides that it shall be unlawful for any person, persons or corporations to offer, grant or give, or to solicit, accept or receive, any rebate, concession or discrimination in respect to the transportation of any property in interstate or foreign commerce * * * whereby any such property shall by any device whatever be transported at a less rate than that named in the tariffs published and filed by the carrier.

If the contentions of the government are upheld in the courts, as it is believed they will be, there will be no difficulty in reaching other private car lines, no matter how powerful, and there is no doubt the rigid enforcement of the severe penalties provided by the Elkins act will speedily put an end to all rebating by means of such devices.

The private car lines should be highly pleased with the institution of this suit. Their attorneys have been clamoring for some time to get the matter into the courts and this was merely a "bluff" on their part. It has been promptly "called" by the Attorney General.

The belief that all devices under which rebates were granted or obtained could be successfully dealt with under the Elkins act, is shared by those who are most familiar with the subject, including Mr. B. P. Bacon, Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Law Convention and the central figure in the movement for rate regulation. Testifying before the committee as to the efficacy of the Elkins act, Mr. Bacon said: "While the Elkins act went as far, it seems to me, as it is possible to go, yet it remains with the commission, on its part, and the Department of Justice, on its part, to enforce the provisions of that act. If they are thoroughly enforced the evil of rebates will be effectually remedied." Later he said: "I consider that provision actually preventative of the practice of making rebates in any way whatsoever from the published tariff rates."

The case at issue is the one in which it is charged that the Pabst Brewing Company has been receiving rebates by a "device" within the meaning of this act, namely, through a commission granted to the Milwaukee Refrigerator Transit Company, which is owned and operated, it is alleged, by the stockholders of the brewing company. Before deciding to file the suit, Attorney General Moody took counsel with District Attorney Butterfield, Assistant Attorney General Purdy, District Attorney Quarles, and the determination to file the suit was the outcome of their deliberations. It is announced that a hearing as a proper regard for the rights of the defendants will permit.

That the testimony of young Hyde before the Armstrong committee will have a powerful influence on the future of ex-Governor Odell, Chairman of the New York Republican State Committee, is assured and already those who oppose him are predicting his downfall. Mr. Odell has played a hard luck of late. After strenuous efforts to frame up a winning ticket in New York City even by uniting with the Municipal Ownership League, he invited Mr. Hughes to become a candidate, which invitation was declined. Now comes Mr. Hughes, continuing his work as chief investigator inquirer and elicitor from Mr. Odell's connection with alleged "strike" bills. Hot foot to Washington, therefore, came the republican cohorts of New York to urge President Roosevelt, to use his influence to have Odell deposed. Senator Platt is too old to assume the duties of active leadership, preferring the position of leader "emeritus," so to speak. There are many others in New York, however, that are willing and able to act and a new republican leader is on the schedule.

Hearst's contest for the mayoralty is a lively topic here and he has the sympathy of almost every one. Not only has the gallant fight he made in an apparently hopeless race elicited much admiration, but it is felt a disturbing element in Congress will be removed if Mr. Hearst becomes mayor of Greater New York. Mr. Hearst is a great "regulator" and has a bill for every ill, and with his chain of newspapers to support him receives credit for great activity in Congress. So much so, that to read his papers one might think he was "the whole show" and John Sharp Williams was merely a side issue, instead of the ablest floor leader in half a dozen Congresses. If Mr. Hearst retires from Congress to the mayoralty he will give others a chance at the Congressional limelight. There is some discussion as to what disposition shall be made of him in the committee assignments. The minority assignments are practically made by Representative Williams, subject to Representative Cannon's approval. Mr. Hearst, having opposed and nearly defeated a stalwart democrat like McClellan, might not be considered a democrat, but in these times of independent thought, speech and voting, this definition is not likely to be held up against him. Moreover, no demagogue with aspirations is looking for a fight with W. R. Hearst at this time after his whirlwind campaign.

New York Letter

New York.—The big railroad systems of the country are just now putting special emphasis on the shortening of time between the great cities which they connect, realizing not only the fact that time is money, but that in effecting any economy in this direction for their patrons, they are doing a great service. The Illinois Central is one of the latest roads to make a record in this direction. The through passenger trains of this system between Chicago and St. Paul, Minneapolis, Sioux City and Omaha have cut fifty minutes out of the time of the limited between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul, while thirty-five minutes have been cut off the running time between Chicago and Omaha.

Shortening the time between Chicago and Los Angeles by an hour and a half will be accomplished by the "Rock Island's Golden State Limited," which will be placed in service Sunday, November 26. The train will leave Chicago at 9 o'clock p. m. and arrive at Los Angeles at 2:15 p. m. the third day out.

It is reported on the best of authority from Washington, that being unable to influence the President in any other way, some of the large railroads thought to reach his sympathies by sending a committee of employees to interview Mr. Roosevelt and protect to him against rate legislation. The President, however, is too intent upon remedying the railroad evil to be swayed from his duty by any process of reasoning, for he realizes that the good of the people demands action. He declares that he wants to hurt no railroads, but desires to protect the interests of shippers and roads alike. Mr. Roosevelt does not think that rate legislation means rate deduction, and says that the complaints which reach him are concerned more with low than high rates, since it is the especially low rates granted certain shippers by some of the roads that are causing the trouble.

LINE CITY DIVORCEE GETS TEN THOUSAND

Mrs. S. Graham Field Given, Not Granted, Large Sum, Real Estate and Alimony.

Although the court records of the divorce granted Mrs. S. Graham Field of Beloit from her husband in Circuit court here last Friday, show that only the decree was given, it is understood that a liberal cash settlement was made. The amount is currently reported as being $10,000 besides valuable real estate and $25 monthly alimony. For many months it has been more than quietly whispered that relations were strained between Mr. and Mrs. Field, and although it was hoped the matter might be passed over without a separation it was feared that that could not be done. Popular rumors say that the break in the happy domestic relations of the couple was brought about by the attention shown on the part of the husband to another woman, who formerly lived in Beloit, but who has now removed from the city. This woman was recently divorced from her husband, an incident which is regarded as significant by those acquainted with the circumstances.

FRIENDS SURPRISE MRS. DONNELLY ON BIRTHDAY

Cards Were Played, Refreshments Served and Dancing Enjoyed.

In honor of Mrs. T. D. Donnelly's birthday, Mr. and Mrs. Donnelly were last Thursday night made the victims of a surprise by a number of friends. The early part of the evening was spent in playing progressive cinch. Mrs. Joseph Kolb was awarded the first ladies' prize; Mrs. T. Galtie, the second, and Mrs. M. Roberts, the consolation. The gentlemen's first trophy was won by Michael Birmingham, the second by Charles Gokley and the consolation by James Sweeney. At the close of the card contest delicate refreshments were served. Dancing was then indulged in, the music being furnished by Charles Gokley and Mrs. Carl Williams. As a token of their esteem for Mrs. Donnelly the self-invited guests presented the hostess with a set of table linen.

FOURTEEN WEEKS' FARMING COURSE

BEGINS AT STATE UNIVERSITY ON DECEMBER 2.

SEVERAL NEW DEPARTMENTS

Farm Engineering One of the Recently Added Lines of Study—Horse Breeding Another.

The short course in agriculture in the college of agriculture of the University of Wisconsin which will begin December 2 and continue for fourteen weeks until March 8, 1906, promises to be the most interesting in the history of the institution. From applications already received an unusually large attendance is anticipated. In addition to the lines of instruction which have been given in the past, a number of new and important phases of agricultural instruction based on recent experiment and investigation will also be presented this year for the first time.

Among these new courses is that in farm engineering. In this connection instruction will be given in rural architecture, farm machinery, motors, engines, pumps and water supply, and fence and road construction. The purpose of this work is to familiarize the young farmer with the latest and best types of agricultural machinery, and the most recent developments in concrete and other forms of construction for silos, barns and agricultural buildings generally.

The new department of horse breeding under the direction of Prof. A. S. Alexander will offer new courses and practical work in the judging, handling, feeding, breeding, and care of horses, and will consider in detail the methods of carrying out the most effective operation of the new state law in regard to registry of animals used in breeding.

The important results that have been obtained by Prof. R. A. Moore in his experiments in growing alfalfa in Wisconsin will be discussed for the benefit of the short course students, and the conditions fully explained, which are necessary in order to secure the best result in growing crops. Methods of growing soy beans which recent experiments have demonstrated results in feeding swine and sheep, another of the new subjects. The department of soils has an interesting course announced on the utilization of swamp lands of the state and the means of increasing manyfold their fertility.

All these additions to the instructions offered are in accord with the purpose of the course, which is to give the young farmer the latest information in regard to practical agricultural matters in order that he may get the best result from his efforts in farming and stock raising. The only requirement for entrance is that the young man be over sixteen years of age, and have a common school education. While the accommodations of the school have been extended this year so that all applying for admission may be accommodated, the university authorities desire to secure applications from prospective students as far in advance as possible of the opening of the term on December 2, in order that provisions may be made for beginning the course promptly.

Operation of Labor Plants. Thirty members of the senior class of the college of engineering of the University of Wisconsin under the direction of three professors are spending this week inspecting important engineering plants in the east. This trip, which is taken annually, is designed to familiarize the students with the operation of large electrical and machinery plants of the country. Two days will be spent at Niagara Falls and Buffalo visiting the Niagara Falls and the Canadian power companies which utilize the water power of the falls; the Lackawanna Steel Works, and the large elevator and dry docks of Buffalo. At Pittsburgh the party will inspect the Westinghouse electric, machine and air brake plants, the large window and plant glass manufacturers, the Nerst Electric Lamp company, and the Pressed Steel Car company, and other large electrical machinery companies. The itinerary will also include the Brooks Locomotive works at Dunlap, Pa., and the large iron mills and furnaces at Homestead and McKeesport, Pa.

Social Problems of Cities. Forty students of sociology at the University of Wisconsin under the direction of Professor Jerome Dowd are spending this week in studying sociological conditions in Chicago and Milwaukee. The purpose of the trip is to acquaint the students of this subject with the sociological problems of the large cities and the practical methods employed by the important social, moral and charitable institutions in dealing with these matters. The party will inspect the industrial school for boys at Waukegan, the county hospital and poor house at Wauwatosa, and the University of Wisconsin social settlement in Milwaukee. Among the places they will visit in Chicago are the Hull House settlement, the Chicago Commons, the Cook County Hospital, the Bureau of Identification, and the Salvation Rescue Home.

MEMBER OF UNIVERSITY FACULTY CALLS FOR AT-KINSON GREATEST DAIRY CENTER IN THE COUNTRY

L. H. Webster, Chief of Dairy Division of the Department of Agriculture, Renders Such a Verdict.

Fort Atkinson, Nov. 20.—L. H. Webster, chief of the dairy division of the department of agriculture, spent part of last week here, visiting Hoard's Dairyman office, the Cornish, Curtis and Greene Mfg. Co., manufacturers of dairy supplies; Hoard's Palace creamery, the Henry Schenck Co., and Hoard's dairy farm. He pronounced Fort Atkinson to be the greatest dairy center of the country on account of all the interests above named. Fort Atkinson is becoming widely known under its new name, "The Creamery City."

BRODHEAD'S NOVEL SOCIAL FUNCTION

Brown Wrapping Paper Invitations Delivered by Poorly Clad Women with Lantern.

Brodhead is the town where novels in the ways of social entertainment are originated. There was a poverty party the other night, the invitations written on brown wrapping paper with lead pencil being left by two ladies who went from house to house, one carrying a lantern. The furniture was in harmony with the occasion. There were pieces of boards, boxes, plank, jars and all other things for chairs. The curtains were removed from the room, and some of the tables were without linings. The old coffee mill occupied a prominent place in the kitchen, and the tin water pail and cup was an important feature in the furnishing of the same.

There were costumes of every nation and description—wooden shoes, gaily colored costumes, elaborate headgear, dainty combination of colors and jewelry galore, gave evidence that the ladies had done much preparing for the event, and high hats, and low ones, dense neckties, boots and footless, elaborately colored coats and vests and flashing jewelry were characteristic of the men's dress. The score cards were brown paper tied with hemp cord, and the rules of the game on store paper, accompanied each table. The lunch consisted of baked beans, sandwiches, baked apples, popcorn, with delicious aqua pura served from a large tin pail with a tin cup for drinking. The prizes were a broom, an apple, and an onion, and a pet squirrel, one that wouldn't run away.

HOUSEHOLD

On Washing the Hands in Winter. I have had so many inquiries of late from my sex asking about washing the hands during the winter season. It is a very common practice among women to wash their hands in water to which a little ammonia has been added. This will do very well if the supplementary processes are carried out, but in the simple use of ammonia in water it will certainly make the hands very rough, almost beyond endurance. Such has been mine and others' experience. As a cleanser it is useful oil out near the surface of the skin, causing roughness and a tendency to chaps and wrinkles. After the use of any alkali preparation, (and remember that many soaps contain alkali), the hands should be rinsed in clear, soft water and dried well with a soft towel, then dusted thickly, while the pores are open, with talcum powder, as it refines and softens the texture of the skin and prevents chapping.

When the finger nails are dry and break easily, vaseline should be rubbed in after washing the hands. It will do a world of good. I feel gratified to get so many notes telling me how I have helped my sister housekeepers. It is my wish to do so. "KENTUCKIENNE."

GAVE FULL ACCOUNT OF SATURDAY'S GAME

Wisconsin Telephone Company Had the Game at Ann Arbor Play by Play.

Through the courtesy of the management of the Wisconsin Telephone company, the readers of the Gazette were able to read the final score of the Michigan-Wisconsin football game last Saturday within two minutes after the game actually finished at Ann Arbor, Michigan. The telephone company had a wire directly from the football field at Ann Arbor to Milwaukee and the Janesville long distance wire was connected there. As play by play was made it was recounted across the wire the thousand-odd miles and almost as quick as the ball was put into play it was known in Janesville. Aside from this service the Gazette had a special representative on the field and between the two lines of service, telephone and telegraph, it was able to give its readers the accident to the grandstand and the final score with but a few minutes' delay over the regular press time. In fact, the detailed account of the game as published Saturday was as complete as that published in any of the Sunday morning Chicago papers for the first half.

Labor Notes

The Alabama Coal miners have been on a strike over a year.

From 1880 to 1900, the only period covered by labor statistics in the United States, there were 23,000 strikes and lockouts, involving 127,000 establishments, 650,000 workmen, and entailing a loss to employers and employees of $168,000,000.

Massachusetts does not allow women to work more than ten hours in any one day.

Iowa has had a bureau of labor statistics since 1884.

TWO GOODLY SIZED AUDIENCES WITNESS "UNCLE SI HASKINS"

Rural Play Presented Afternoon and Evening at Myers Theatre Saturday.

Two goodly sized audiences witnessed the production of "Uncle Si Haskins" at the Myers Grand opera house Saturday, matinee and evening. As the name indicates, the play is a rural piece, though rather of the melodramatic than comic nature. The plot is the old story of a country girl deceived by a man of the world whom she marries and keeps her secret from her father. During the play a number of musical specialties were introduced—whistling solos by Loris Smythe and songs by Eddie Jackson, Daisy E. Clark and Grace Mayhew.

STRONG LECTURE BY C. A. BUSKIRK

INDIANA MAN SPOKE AT MYERS OPERA HOUSE SUNDAY.

TOPIC, "CHRISTIAN SCIENCE"

Gave a Good Address to a Large and Attentive Audience—Is an Excellent Speaker.

Hon. Clarence A. Buskirk of Princeton, Indiana, delivered an interesting lecture on Christian Science at the Myers Opera-house yesterday afternoon. The downstairs seating capacity of the building was taxed and a few found seats in the balcony. Mr. Buskirk is a telling speaker and gave a wonderful address on the doctrine of his advocates. He is middle-aged, but his voice is strong and pleasing. Marshall P. Richardson introduced the speaker in a few well-chosen words and Mr. Buskirk said in part as follows:

Correct classifications and precise definitions are essential to every form of systematic knowledge—indeed, there can be no science without them. Christian Science classifies and defines infinite Mind, or God, and His infinite manifestation, as the reality, and all else, including material phenomena, sin, sickness, and so forth, as non-reality. This classification has been the source of much misrepresentation and ignorant ridicule. Christian Science does not deny that all these appearances seem real to our sense-consciousness. It does not treat them as merely imaginary, as has been incorrectly stated by some of its critics. But it seeks to define and classify them with scientific accuracy. And it finds from actual experience that this classification is absolutely indispensable to the performance of its practical works. It finds that Jesus taught and proved the non-reality of the appearances which he overcame. It finds that Paul had the same classification in mind when he wrote of the things which are seen as being temporal and the things which are not seen as eternal. It finds that this classification is the only one which can possibly harmonize with the Scriptural statement that God saw that everything which he had made was very good. It is only what is not good, and therefore, not of God, which Christian Scientists seek to overcome.

All that is not good is not of God, and can, therefore, have no real existence. It is true that until a few decades ago the physical scientists were largely materialistic in their views regarding matter as either the sole reality, or as a dual reality with God. Now the greatest among them are taking the same view of matter which was taken by the discoverer of Christian Science more than thirty years ago. It is within the last year, for example, that Mr. Balfour, the prime minister of England, as president of a meeting of natural scientists in England, made the remark, in his opening address, that the natural sciences were now explaining matter by explaining it away.

Foremost among modern physical scientists are the names of Huxley, Tyndall, Herbert Spencer, Prof. Herbert Spencer wrote: "I have had to rebut the charge of materialism too numerous to remember." Professor Grant Allen, writing of the late Professor Tyndall, says: "The charge of materialism could only be brought against such a man by those who had a glimpse of the profounder fact that the universe, as known to us, consists wholly of mind, and that matter is a doubtful and uncertain inference of the human intelligence." Professor Huxley also wrote: "What is this thing called matter, after all, except the unknown, supernatural cause of states of our own consciousness?" That is to say, we know that we think, according to our sense-perceptions, what an object is, but we do not know what the reality behind the appearance. We may, for example, say that a metal is opaque. But we only know that to the human sense it is opaque. Beings with different eyesight see with X-ray or N-ray eyes, might accept it as transparent. The fact that the entire human race has the same kind of eyes, of sense perception and sense consciousness concerning physical objects, only proves that things have substantially the same appearances to all human beings. But this is also proven by the false appearance to the senses of all human beings that the sun rises in the east and sets in the west; that straight oar seems to be bent under water; that two parallel iron rails seem to approach each other in the distant railroad tracks and by many like instances.

Christian Science recognizes in the scriptural declaration that "God is Love" the great dynamic truth of the universe. It seeks to make this dynamic truth the basis of its entire system of doctrine and practice.

Hence, it seeks to establish our thoughts and lives on the high tablelands of purity and peace, faith and faithfulness. And, therefore, Christian Science can have no doctrine which recognizes or admits directly or remotely that such phenomena as sin, sickness and suffering are the creations of God, and so sanctioned and perpetuated by infinite love. It refuses to sanction the teaching that while God is always willing and abundantly able to save the sinner, yet, for some inscrutable reason, His all-embracing Providence is either not able or not willing to save the sinner.

Christian Science discerns by the light of our highest reason, as well as by the authority of scripture that it is sublimely true that "God saw everything that he had made, and, behold, it was very good." Not only good, but very good. Hence it has no teaching that admits or even suggests that God is the author of evil. You ask, then, who made the phenomena of evil, if God did not make them? They are the products of the carnal mind; for they belong to human consciousness, and it is unthinkable that they can belong to the divine consciousness, which is Love, and whose attributes are harmony, wisdom, goodness. Let me illustrate. Suppose that you have been erroneously taught that twice two is five.

Suppose that you fully believe this false rule, act upon it for years, either erroneously by reason of it, lose money for yourself and others and suffer from the falsehood that twice two is five. Can you say that this is correct teaching of mathematics? God is Truth, and so is utterly incapable of creating a falsehood. God is the principle of Harmony, not discord, and so is utterly incapable of creating aught that is hateful, unjust or cruel. The conceptions which a person has of God exercise a most powerful influence over that person's character, conduct, habits of thinking and physical being. Indeed, it is impossible to measure or limit the activities and scope of these influences and their far-reaching effects. If we believe that God is the author of sin, we look upon sin as an unavoidable and, indeed, indispensable part of the economy of the universe. If we believe God to be the author of sickness, and that sickness is one of the dispensations of divine Providence (to use a phrase that was once much in fashion) what is the use of our taking any new steps to get well? If we really believe that God intends and decrees us to be sick, can we expect that drugs, or prayers, or faith, or anything else, will defeat the divine purpose? Can we only become more hopeful in our efforts to overcome sin and sickness as we lose our belief in such a God.

FUNNY SITUATION IN THE LINE CITY NOW

Nine Lawyers Practicing There—Seven Want To Be Elected Judge of the New Court.

On Saturday last the members of the Beloit Bar held their adjourned meeting to decide what steps should be taken for endorsement of a candidate for the newly created court for that city. It was the sense of the call that the meeting make no recommendation as to the candidacy of any one candidate and after the passage of a high-flown resolution to this effect, in which the primary law and its working was held up to derision, an informal ballot was taken as to the personal choice of the persons present. There are nine practicing attorneys in Beloit, seven of whom are avowed candidates for the office and the vote resulted in four votes for Silas W. Morris and two for Joel B. Dow. It is understood that the nomination papers of seven of the nine Beloit attorneys will be in circulation within a day or two and that there are also two Janesville lawyers seeking the honor.

Convicted Wife Murderer Says That He is Not Husband of Rixdorf, Germany, Woman.

The Janesville lady who recently received a letter from Germany, asking for a shop-lifter who made away with a fur muff from the Bort, Bailey & Co. store in this city on Saturday. They expect to land the woman and if she does not disgorge the stolen property and pay the cost she will be arrested and brought back here for trial. J. M. Bostwick & Sons also lost a skirt by the same means but recovered it at the depot just before the woman left for Madison Saturday evening. It seems that on Saturday last a woman bought a cloak at Bort, Bailey & Co.'s and then sat down, saying she was going to wait for train time. She had a dress suit case with her and after she left a fur muff was discovered missing. She had been in J. M. Bostwick & Sons' store in the afternoon and after she left a skirt was missing. Appleby was called and a description of the missing article and suspected woman given and he found her at the North-Western depot. He told her he wanted the skirt taken from Bostwick's and the woman complied, after taking him away from the crowd. He knew nothing of the other theft at that time. Upon learning of it later he and Mr. Greenman went to Madison today to try and locate the woman. Other merchants believe that they also have been victims of her thieving, as she has made frequent visits to Janesville this fall, being stated she was here for medical treatment by a local physician.

IN THE SPORTING WORLD.

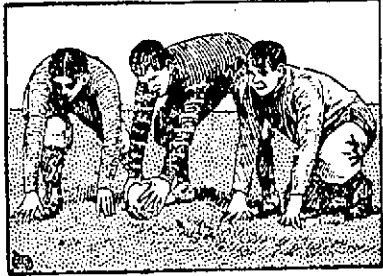

Duties of Guards and Center Men

Hold Firm Against Line Bucking --- Break Up Defense of Opponents. Play Low In the Line and Assist the Carrier of Ball.

The two guards and the center rush, the center trio, are invariably the heaviest members of a football team. They form the anchor that holds the "nose" of an eleven into the wind when the gridiron hurricanes break loose in all their fury.

The chief duties of the center trio are to hold firm against line bucking onslaughts and, when on the offensive, to break up the defense of opponents.

The guards and the center should be thoroughly drilled in playing low, very low. It is only by determined low playing that attacks aimed at center can be stopped and broken up.

They should always endeavor to keep closed the intervals or spaces between them. If these intervals are unprotected during offense, opponents can rush through them and break up plays. During defense openings will permit opposing carriers of the ball to force through for gains. Of course the intervals must be opened when a center or guard's own team aims a play at it, but the guard in such instances should take care that the opposing guard or center is thrust aside.

The rules for guards and centers in making openings are as follows:

Third.—When an opposing guard or center plays high—that is, stands up—right or almost so—the center men should force him straight back or bowl him over on his back by charging at him low and strongly.

The guards of an attacking (an offensive) team should line up with their legs braced well and knees bent. The right guard places his right shoulder against the center's left shoulder. The left guard's left shoulder touches the center's right shoulder. The guard's hands and arms should be kept free to be used in thrusting opponents aside. The moment the center snaps back the ball the guards should lunge forward and outward. In the case of end runs the guards of an attacking team can often leave their positions in the line the moment the ball is snapped, to join in interfering for the runner.

In cases of line bucking, when a man carries the ball into center, the guards and center rush are expected to assist the runner as much as possible by pulling or pushing him along into the enemy's territory and by interfering for him if he succeeds in forcing himself through and clear of the line.

Sometimes a guard is called on to advance the ball. On such occasions his weight makes him a particularly hard man to stop, although his movements are necessarily slow. The famous guards back formation, invented at the University of Pennsylvania several years ago by Coach Woodruff, won many games for the Quakers. Harvard finally destroyed the usefulness of the play by instructing the crimson center trio to lie down directly in front of the advancing formation. The heavy Pennsylvania men simply piled upon the prostrate Harvard forwards and made little gain. The guards back was a mass play of a pronounced description, and many men were injured by it.

Every guard and center rush will do well to fall face downward when thrown to the ground in a scrimmage or else he runs a good chance of receiving a knee or a couple of cleated shoes implanted on his stomach or face. In center plays the rule of the "survival of the fittest" invariably applies.

Notable Players.

Harvard Football Squad Contains President's Son and Multimillionaire.

The Harvard football squad has two men who have caused much comment in the newspapers. They are Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., the president's eldest son, and Fred White, a young man from Brooklyn whose wealth is estimated at from $4,000,000 to $6,000,000. Why should a man with all that money risk his neck playing football? ask the sporting scribes of the hour.

Young Roosevelt shows great promise as a line player. He tried to "make" the position of end this year, but failed by a narrow margin. At Groton, Mass., young Teddy played a splendid game at end on his school team a year ago.

"There is no doubt," say the varsity coaches, "that Roosevelt will 'make' the first team next year. All he needs is a little more experience and development."

At present Roosevelt is a star member of the freshman team. On the gridiron his play is strenuous. He falls on the ball with an earnestness that warms the heart of the freshman coach. The four years that young Teddy put in playing end on the football team at Groton now stand him in good stead, and he is not as awkward in his movements as the rest of the youngsters.

Fred White is a six footer, weighing almost 240 pounds after banting off fifteen in the past twelve months. He is one of the most picturesque figures in the football world today. Many men with $6,000,000 in bank and real estate wouldn't care to risk their limbs in wild scrimmages. They would take it easy through college as through life. Not so the Brooklyn boy. Football for him, and if he has a thought of his large property when playing a game it doubtless is one of gratitude that he is rich enough to indulge in his favorite pastime as often and as heartily as he does.

Paradoxically, White has red hair—a whole shock of it set on a large head above a solid, determined looking face. The neck is short and the shoulders broad, the arms thick and powerful.

FRED WHITE, HARVARD CENTER.

His gait is awkward, but he gets there just the same. And he has all kinds of split.

At present White is playing regular center on the varsity. Last year he played guard. His game at center is marked by aggressiveness and pluck. His passing at times is poor, and the coaches are working hard to eradicate this fault.

McCoy's Many Wives.

Kid McCoy can very well afford to side step the sporting game, as wife No. 5 is said to have inherited $3,000,000 from her first husband.

Sysonby Greatest Of Racers

James R. Keene's Stake Winning Thoroughbred Has Won More Money Than Any Other American Horse Except Domino.

There may be some doubts in the minds of race goers in regard to the greatest race horse the American turf has seen during the last twenty years, but there is no question that in Domino and Sysonby James R. Keene has owned the greatest breadwinners in the country.

It seldom falls to the lot of one man to own at any period two such great horses as they. But to possess two such champions in less than fifteen years is remarkable. With these two horses alone Mr. Keene has won $381,433 from the various racing associations.

Domino, known as the black whirlwind, won $196,380. This sum will likely be eclipsed by Sysonby, the racing marvel of today. It took Domino three years to win this amount. In two years Sysonby has won $194,833. If the latter had won last season's Futurity, the only race in which he has been defeated in his career, he would have beaten all previous winnings made by race horses in this country, and he would have overtopped Domino's record by nearly $30,000.

Sysonby leads all horses this year in the matter of money won. During the season he ran in nine races, won eight outright and made a dead heat in the other event. His total net winnings are $145,100.

Artful, Sysonby's greatest rival, has not been nearly so fortunate in landing the rich plums of the turf this year.

THE PERISSLESS SYSONBY, WINNER OF $194,833.

Her most important victory was the Brighton handicap, worth $22,000. She won two other overnight events, and her winnings amounted to $23,500. That she was able to win this sum was a matter of great surprise to most turfmen, as she was a very sick filly all last winter and was not expected to live. She had catarrhal fever, which usually leaves race horses' lungs in such a congested state that they are unable to stand the strain of heavy respiration when racing. But Artful was an exception to this.

Ormondale, the winner of the Futurity, is the largest winning two-year-old of the season. He only won one race, but as that event exceeded in value every other race of the season it placed him at the head of the list. First money, coupled with two third places, which he secured during the Saratoga (N. Y.) and Brighton Beach meetings, placed his winnings close to $45,000. His nearest rival was Harry Payne Whitney's Burgermaster, who won a number of stakes at various tracks.

Hamburg Belle, for two seasons a favorite with racegoers, won $15,000 this year. This was a large sum considering that she is now four years old and did not race very often. The other horses in Jack Joyner's stable did remarkably well, and he will share the year's honors with James R. Keene and Harry Payne Whitney, the two leading winning owners of the season.

Cairngorm got his share of the money with $43,000. Tradition was the second best three-year-old filly of the season and gathered in $18,480. Jacobite, the leading winning two-year-old in Sydney Paget's string, won $15,000. Ormondale's Right, the only other son of Ormondale besides Ormondale racing in the east, won $7,200. The stable's winnings to date amount to $121,000.

There have been no horses in America that have won $200,000. The English thoroughbreds exceed ours in this respect. Singlass in three years won $287,274. He is in the matter of money won the champion race horse of the world, Donovan during the same period of time won $275,760. Flying Fox in two years won an aggregate amount of $290,000.

Judith of the Plains

—By—
MARIE MANNING.
Author of "Lord Allingham, Bankrupt"

Copyright, 1905, by Harper & Brothers

"And a man there was and he made his prayer," he quoted to himself. Well, thank God that it had not been answered. He would take her away from here. She could take her place in his family and reflect credit on his choice. His family, his friends—his friends would adjust these difficulties. He would present her to Kitty now, that his old friend might see what manner of woman she was. Kitty, he felt, would be kind in memory of the old days. She would give to them both in friendship what she had denied him in love. And as he warmed to the thought he turned to the woman of his youth. And she read a look in his face that had not been there in a long time. Had he, then, come back to her? Was the distance from back to shore lessening as the sea of misunderstanding diminished?

"Kitty, we were speaking a moment ago of Miss Rodney. You would like to know her, I'm sure. We've been such good friends all these years while you were deciding that what I wanted was not good for us—and deciding wisely, as I know now. Look at her! You'll understand how she has helped me keep the balance of things. When she's finished dancing you'll let me bring her to you, won't you?"

And Kitty, who had expected much different words, struggled with the meaning of these unexpected ones. The strangeness of the pain bewildered her. Her dazed consciousness refused to accept that Peter was asking permission to present to her a woman whom she thought would not have been permitted to enter her presence. There was about her a white flame of anger that seemed to lick up the red blood in her veins as she turned to answer:

"She is undeniably handsome, Peter, but I do not cure to meet your mistress."

He bowed low to her as Lieutenant Swift of Fort Washburn, who was one of the Westmore party, came to claim Kitty's hand for the next dance. Judith and Henderson were leading the last figure, their hands clasped high in an arch, through which the dancers trooped in couples. Again and again he tried to catch Judith's eye, but her glance never once met his. Her great, wide eyes had a faraway look, as if they saw some tragedy, the shadow of which would never fall from her. She was indeed the tragic muse in her floating white drapery; the tragic muse whose grief is too deep for tears. He watched her as she swept toward him in the figure of the dance, the head thrown back, slightly foreshortened, the mouth smiling with the smile that knows all things, the eyes holy wells of truth. It was like her to contrive her brother's escape and then to dance with the very man who had knotted the noose for his hanging. Henderson was bowing to her, the dance was over, and the next moment she was alone.

"Is it you, Peter?" She thrust a strand of hair back from her temple. Her eyes rested on him for a moment, then wandered till in their absent look was the faint expression of the sleep-walker. The dark rimmed eyes had in their depths the quiet of a confederation, and Peter, seeing these things and knowing the gamut of all her moods, saw that he had been mistaken. She had not come to dance in triumph in the face of her brother's enemies. There was no triumph in her face, but white, consuming despair.

"Did you ask me to dance?" Again she put back the strand of hair. "Forgive me for being so stupid, but I've kept postoffice today and had a long ride, and I danced with Henderson."

He drew her arm within his and led the way out through the crowd of dancers to the star strewn night. She did not speak again, nor did she seem to notice that they had left the room with the dancers. She turned her face toward the lonely valley, where the drama of her brother's passing had been consummated, and something there was in her look as it turned toward the hills that told Peter.

"Tell me, Judith, what has happened?"

For answer she pointed toward the valley. "They did it last night at the dead cottonwoods, Henderson led them. I could not stay with Alida. I had to come here to dance that no one might suspect."

Her voice was steady, but low and thrilling. In its deep resonance was the echo of all human sorrow. There was no hint of accusation, yet Peter felt accused. He felt, now when it was too late, that his position had been one of almost pusillanimous negligence. From the beginning he had taken a firm stand against violent measures. He had talked, argued, reasoned, inveighed against violence. No later than a week ago he had ridden across the desert to tell Henderson that the Westmore outfit would take no part in violence of any sort and that the entire outfit that did resort to extreme measures would miss the support of the Westmore. But it had not been enough. He should have made plain his position in regard to Judith. With her as his future wife the tragedy of the valley would not have been possible.

From the ranch house came the swell of the fiddles, the rhythmic shuffle of feet, the song of the dancers, dulled by distance. Beside him was Judith, a white spirit, the woman in her death of grief. And yet through all the grim horror of the tragedy she remembered the part that had been allotted to her, threw all the weight of her personality on the side of the game she was playing.

"You must be on our side, Peter, and when there is talk of Jim's absence you must simply imply that he is somewhere. You will know how to meet such inquiries better than we women. Henderson will be only too glad. You should have seen the wretch when I held out my hand to him and told him to dance with me. He came, white and shambling. We have nothing to fear from Henderson. Alida has no money to go away with. She and I must stay here and make a beginning for the children, and, Peter, we want you to help us."

He had no voice to answer her brave words for a minute, and then his sentences came uncertain and halting.

"You must think me a poor sort of friend, Judith, one who has been blind till the eleventh hour and is then found wanting. I feel so guilty to you, to your brother's wife, to that little child who put out his arms so trustfully to me that night, but I never imagined that things would come to such a pass as this. The smaller cattle outfits have been doing a good deal of blustering, but the more conservative element supposed that they had them in check and did not for a moment think that they would take the law into their own hands. Believe me, this lawlessness has been in the face of every influence that could be brought to bear, and it shall not go unpunished."

She spoke to him from the darkness as the spirit of grief might speak. "An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth, that is the justice of the plains. But, Peter, it is but poor justice. What's done is done, and fresh violence will not give back Alida her husband nor the little ones their father. What we need is friends, one or two loyal souls who, though knowing the hideous truth of this thing, will stand by us in our pitiful falsehood. I have told no one, nor shall I, but you and—Peter, you must not laugh at your fellow conspirator—Leander."

He took her hands in his and pressed them. Big hands they were, and hardened by many a homely task, but withal tender and with the healing quality of womanliness in the touch of their warm, supple fingers. But tonight she did not seem to be conscious of his presence. The woman in her was dead of grief. The white spirit in her place, that plotted and planned that Jim's children and Jim's wife might not from henceforth walk in the shadow of the gallows, was beyond the prompting of the flesh. And again she spoke to him in the same faraway voice, with the same faraway look in her eyes.

"You must know, Peter, that Leander is at heart of the salt of the earth. I told him about it all, and he asked to be given the commission to deal with the men. He has risen to his post magnificently. I heard him swear the wretches to secrecy, hint to them that he had a great story to tell them. They were frightened and listened. And the poor little man that we have so despised told them convincingly how Jim had made good his escape. Even Henderson half believes we saved him."

Peter hoped that she would accuse him of his half heartedness indirectly if not openly. It would have made his conscience more comfortable, and his conscience troubled him sorely tonight. It was that fatal habit of procrastination that had brought this thing about. He had hesitated all these weeks about Judith, and while he had thrashed out the pro and con of her disadvantageous family connection this hideous tragedy had happened.

Children Are Said to Have Plotted With Big Steel Company in Plot to Evict Their Mother.

Pittsburg, Nov. 20.—While workmen of the Jones & Laughlin Steel company were busy Sunday erecting a framework of steel across the little plot of land on which the home of Mrs. Sarah Lot stood Saturday, the aged widow lay critically ill from grief at the house of her son. Mrs. Lot is more than 70 years old and it is feared she will not recover from the shock of the loss of the home, which she prized more than money on account of the fact that she had lived there since the time she was a bride and had promised her husband when he lay dying not to sell the old place.

It was learned that the woman's children were acting in collusion with the steel company in the alleged illegal seizure of the place and destruction of the house. The company's offer of $14,000 for a house which was not worth more than $4,000, that it might be torn down to make way for the addition to the steel plant, tempted the widow's children to forget the things which impelled the mother to refuse all offers and defy the company for more than six months. It is said they agreed to accept the terms of the company, and that the coup to entice the mother away while the house was torn down was arranged.

The officers of the steel company will make no statement in regard to the matter. It is evidently their intention to rely upon the fact that Mrs. Lot, aged and alone, cannot fight a hundred million dollar corporation in court.

FINDS GREWSOME RELICS OF FEAST BY CANNIBALS

Pair of Dried Human Hands and Explorers' Trappings Are Discovered in Lower California.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 20.—In a letter received by George W. Knox of this city the fate of Henry Miller and Gus Olinder, who left here on an expedition to Tiburon island in the Gulf of California nearly a year ago and who have never been heard from, is probably disclosed. On the desolate shores of the Gulf of California, near a deserted Indian village, a wandering herdsman has just found the trappings of Miller and Olinder, a book of nautical science which belonged to Capt. Olinder and a pair of dried human hands which may have been of one of the unfortunate men.

A few feet away was found the charred remains of a huge feast fire and circles of an Indian war dance. It is believed the men were slain and eaten by cannibal Indians who inhabit this portion of Lower California. The discovery of relics of the Miller-Olinder party was made in connection with the search now being conducted by Professor E. P. Grindell of Arizona for his brother, Lieut. Grindell, who was lost on the peninsula.

Russian Coins Cornered.
The Russian government corners its own coins. Every year it mints a limited number of bronze coins of the nominal value of 1-4 kopeck, in English value 1-16th of a penny. As these coins are practically not in circulation only a few are issued. The remainder are sold by the mint authorities at about double their value, for use as card counters.

LODGING HOUSE FIRE IS FATAL

Thirty-Nine Dead and Thirty-Two Injured at Blaze in Glasgow.

NAKED BODIES CHOKE PASSAGE

Firemen Have Desperate Work in Entering Building, the Crowd of Nude Men Endeavoring to Escape Forcing Back the Rescuers.

Glasgow, Nov. 20.—Thirty-nine men lost their lives and thirty-two others were burned severely in a fire which broke out early Sunday morning in a municipal lodging house.

The building was occupied by 330 men, most of them laborers, all belonging to the poorest classes. The flames first were noticed on the fourth floor about 6 o'clock, and in the panic which followed many fell down stairs or jumped from windows.

It is the custom of these lodgers to sleep nude, and when the firemen arrived, almost immediately an extraordinary scene was created by a procession of naked men rushing out of the entrance. Against their frantic efforts to escape the fire fighters actually had to fight for admission.

Bodies Fill the Passages.
Reaching the upper floors, the firemen found that the narrow passages were becoming congested with men who had dropped to the floors overcome by smoke. The fire, however, was confined to the fourth floor, and as soon as the firemen were able to get to work it was speedily extinguished.

The flames had been fed by the wooden partitions of the cubicles, which threw off volumes of smoke, resulting in the suffocation of the inmates. Many, on being brought to the street, rallied in a few minutes, but others had to be taken to the hospitals.

The dead were mostly workmen in the prime of life. The presented a horrible spectacle, their blackened faces bearing evidence of terrible struggles to escape.

Caught in Fire Trap.
Many men were sleeping on the attic floor above the burning fourth floor, and these had narrow escapes. The flames burst through the floor, and it was impossible for them to descend. The windows were securely fastened, and they could not climb through to neighboring roofs.

The march of the nude survivors to the police station was a fantastic one. Some had snatched the covers off the beds and others their trousers, while many were nothing. The local authorities had to be called upon to supply the men with clothing and warm meals.

Warming to their migratory habits and the absence of permanent homes many of the dead never will be identified. The identification of others is rendered difficult by the absence of clothing.

SCALDS HIS INDOLENT SPOUSE

Indiana Man Who Wanted Dinner Pours Hot Water in Bed.
Evansville, Ind., Nov. 20.—It was a novel as well as effective means of persuasion which Elias Miller used on his wife Sunday morning, when, he claims, she refused to leave her bed and get his dinner. The pangs of hunger, he told the police, led him to pour boiling hot water on her, when, after repeated entreaties, she would not get up. Mrs. Miller was badly scalded. Her screams of pain aroused the neighbors, who summoned a physician and the police. Her injuries are so serious that she may die.

Explosion Causes Blaze.

Owatonna, Minn., Nov. 20.—Fire destroyed the three-story brick block occupied by Carroll & Smith, hardware dealers, paring a loss estimated at $50,000. A quantity of powder in the stock of the hardware firm exploded, and making efforts to extinguish it almost futile.

Hunters See Tri-Colored Moose.

Duluth, Minn., Nov. 20.—A giant moose of remarkable coloring is reported to be ranging in the woods along the north shore. Several parties of hunters have sighted the animal, which is said to combine the national colors—red, white and blue.

Backache, "The Blues"

Both Symptoms of Organic Derangement in Women—Thousands of Sufferers Find Relief.

How often do we hear women say: "It seems as though my back would break," or "Don't speak to me, I am all out of sorts?" These significant remarks prove that the system requires attention.

Backache and "the blues" are direct symptoms of an inward trouble which will sooner or later declare itself. It may be caused by diseased kidneys or some organic derangement. Nature requires assistance and at once, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound instantly asserts its curative powers in all those peculiar ailments of women. It has been the standby of intelligent American women for twenty years, and the ablest specialists agree that it is the most universally successful remedy for woman's ills known to medicine.

The following letters from Mrs. Holmes and Mrs. Cotrely are among the many thousands which Mrs. Pinkham has received this year from those whom she has relieved:

Surely such testimony is convincing. Mrs. J. G. Holmes, of Larimore, North Dakota, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I have suffered everything with backache and womb trouble—I let the trouble run on until my system was in such a condition that I was unable to be about, and then it was I commenced to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. If I had only known how much suffering I would have saved, I should have taken it months sooner for a few weeks' treatment made me well and strong. My backache and headache are all gone and I suffer no pain at my menstrual periods, whereas before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I suffered intense pain."

Mrs. Emma Cotrely, 109 East 19th Street, New York City, writes:

Ask Mrs. Pinkham's Advice—A Woman Best Understands a Woman's Ills.

HELPED TO BUILD SOO CANAL
John C. Crawley Denies That Last Survivor Has Passed Away.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 20.—John C. Crawley, an aged Irishman, who is making his home with his nephew, ex-Register of Deeds, Andrew T. Hughes of this vicinity, disputes the claim that with the death of Thomas Flanagan by the recent explosion at Ishpeming the last survivor of those that had helped build a Sault Ste. Marie canal passed away. Mr. Crawley worked two years on the canal, one year at the Soo and one year at Drummond Island, where stone was quarried for the work. Mr. Crawley says that he was the youngest man, outside of a boy, among those employed. He is anxious to know if he is the sole survivor. He is enjoying good health and gives promise of living many more years.

FISHING DISPUTE IS SETTLED.
Secretary Root and Ambassador Durand Arrive at Terms.

Washington, Nov. 20.—Dovager of a clash between the Gloucester and Newfoundland fishermen has been averted, it is believed, for this season, by the exchanges between Secretary Root and Sir Mortimer Durand, the British ambassador. The secretary is awaiting the reply of the London government to his memorandum. This is expected some time within the past week, and its receipt, it is believed, will clear up the entire situation.

Cigarette Fiend Is Insane.
Cleveland, O., Nov. 20.—Lewis Koffman, 25 years old, who, according to his father, Morris Koffman, a cigarette maker, smoked 100 cigarettes daily for a year, was adjudged insane and sent to the state hospital. The father says his son ate and slept little, but smoked and read continually.

Picture Machine Injures Thirty.
Pittsburg, Nov. 20.—The explosion of a moving picture machine in the small show room resulted in the injury of about thirty persons, mostly children. The explosion was caused by the celluloid films igniting from the powerful light. All the injured will recover.

FIRE DEMON TAKES DRINK OF LIQUOR BY WHOLESALE

Thousands Of Gallons Of Old Whisky Quenches Thirst Of Flames With Water As A Chaser.

Connellsville, Pa., Nov. 20.—The old reliable "fire fiend" took the biggest drink on record Sunday, when he "lapped up" $10,000 gallons of 8-year-old whisky, using about 5,000,000 gallons of water as a chaser. The drink cost the A. Overholt Distillery company $4,000,000.

This amount of tanglefoot—figuring seventy drinks to the gallon—represents $6,700,000 "straights" or high balls, and means that every man and woman (and some of the precocious children) in the country have each saved 15c or 25c, according to whether they were playing a lone hand or being sociable.

The main bonded warehouse of the distillery was burned to the ground. Smoke first was seen issuing from the third story of the building, which was alongside the Baltimore and Ohio tracks. Joseph McDonald and G. Packin, employees of the company, climbed up the fire escape and opened a window in a suffocating cloud and dropped unconscious on the fire escape. They were rescued by other workmen, and a general alarm was sounded.

MAKE PROTEST AGAINST ESCH BILL

The statement says: "The proposition which is submitted through this bill to the railroad employees is that in all arbitration in the future for the protection of their rights, the railroads will have the power to say whether or not they will, and the railroad men must rely upon the government bureau for everything which they now enjoy by right and in freedom. It is also true that no single body of men that can be gathered together by the government to control the rates and control the railroads will be able to accomplish even a small portion of the task. At the present time the equitable adjustments of all of the railroad rates in this country are beyond the powers of the thousands of men who are engaged in the task. The proposition of expecting a small group of men to perform successfully what thousands cannot do is to ridiculous to merit the serious consideration of any thoughtful man."

DAWES WITNESS IN TRIAL OF PACKERS

Attention of Government Officials Was Attracted by His Denunciation of the Prosecution.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, November 20.—A most interesting phase of the government's case against the beef packers was the appearance of Charles Gates Dawes today as a witness. Mr. Dawes does not relish his position at all, but as president of the Central Trust Company, it is intimated that he can give much valuable information to the prosecuting attorneys. For some time it has been reported that the packers are back of the company. Mr. Dawes attracted the attention of the government officials October 24 when he lapsed at a meeting of the State Bankers' Association at Lincoln, Neb., when he denounced the prosecution of the packers. The government has been investigating the report of his company's connection with the packers.

NOVEMBER TERM OF COURT OPENS

AND ONLY A FEW CASES ARE DISMISSED.

BRITT VS. WRIGHT ACTION

Involving Disputed Right to Close a Lane, Is First Action to Come to Trial.

At the courthouse this morning the November term of circuit court was opened. Of the issues of fact for the jury the following were dismissed: Charles L. Hall vs. David Griffin, and J. C. Stanton vs. F. H. Crisman. Motions to dismiss were made in the actions of Samuel Schreiber vs. the H. J. Leonard Mfg. Co., and Geo. Shaw, executor, and Jane Shaw vs. D. E. Deming. Jury actions continued until the next term were: Charles Mattick vs. the city of Janesville, a suit brought to recover damages alleged to have been done by the Fountain House property by water which the sewers failed to carry off; Barbara Schultz vs. Paul Schultz; The action of Nels Thompson vs. William Klusmeyer was settled out of court. Trial by jury was waived in the following actions: John L. Fulton vs. F. L. Preston, the Monmouth Mining & Mfg. Co. vs. M. J. Benson and Richard T. Hanrahan, Gertrude B. Whitford vs. Chas. McCarthy. The action of the city of Janesville vs. John Doe, et al, brought to secure judgment against delinquent taxpayers, was held open. A motion to amend the return from justice court was made in the action of A. D. and T. R. Harper vs. John Hamm, et al. A motion to amend was also made in the re-petition of the city of Evansville for the condemnation of certain lands and for the opening and extension of Maple avenue. The case on trial today is: Walter Britt vs. Waite Wright, an action tried a year ago and resulting in a disagreement of the jury. It involves a lane leading to the Wright farm which Britt seeks to have closed because it divides two forty-acre tracts belonging to his farm. E. H. Ryan and Charles Pierce represent the plaintiff and Fethers, Jeffris, Mouat and Newhouse, the defendant.

Cases Set for Trial.

Other cases set for trial are: James A. Bowdish vs. Chas. C. Clarke, Jake Cohn vs. Arthur Garde, Henry Raymond vs. John B. Ostrander, et al, G. W. Lincoln vs. Fred L. Franklin, et al, John Dooley vs. William Murray, Calvin Clamer vs. Alva Snider, Chas. Schmaling vs. Herman Butke, Geo. H. Briggs vs. M. R. Gaston Sons Co., Johann Murphy vs. the C. & N. W. Ry. Co., Dr. W. H. Palmer and Dr. E. T. Woods, an action to recover for the alleged unnecessary mutilation of a corpse; Myron Fennon vs. Thos. F. Powers; Oscar Prybyle vs. Andrew Erickson, William E. Dee Co. vs. M. J. Benson, F. L. Graves vs. David Pillar; William B. Conrad, et al, vs. the Rock County Telephone Co., an action involving the right-of-way of the telephone line conduits through the alley in the rear of the Hayes block and resulting from an appeal from the award of $200 a lot damages on the part of the commissioners; Henry Hardwick vs. Chas. R. Tallard, Jr., Martin Paulson vs. the Rock County Sugar Co., Jos. Chant vs. the Clinton Telephone Co.; Margaret McComb vs. the St. Paul Ry. Co., an action brought to recover damages for injuries alleged to have been sustained as the result of the collision of a locomotive with a baby carriage; Jas. Scott, et al, vs. Geo. Decker; William Reckhow vs. Geo. F. Harding, Randall vs. Donnelly; Richard Valentine vs. the Rock County Telephone Co., a suit to recover back salary; R. P. Smith & Sons vs. Paul Rudolph and others, an action resulting from a transaction in shoes and appealed from municipal court. The action of John H. Parker vs. the Fairbanks-Morse Co. was set for Dec. 1 and that of Moss Anderson vs. the same defendant, immediately following the first named.

The divorce action of Lois C. McGregor vs. William D. McGregor, the sequel to some events which occurred months ago, was set for December 4.

Issues of Fact.

Under the head of issues of fact for the court, cases were disposed of as follows: James A. Toole vs. Chas. C. Gray, submitted to a referee; Wesley Garlock, et al, vs. Geo. Luckner, et al, Henry Rau vs. F. M. Marzuff, H. H. Blanchard vs. the Wisconsin Telephone Co., John C. Lynch vs. Joseph A. Ryan, et al, Catherine Welch vs. the Rock Co. Nat'l Bank and Arthur P. Burnham, cashier, all set for trial. Depositions will be taken in the action of Fred F. Miller vs. Wm. L. White, et al. The matter of the petition of the Beloit, Delavan Lake & Janesville Ry. Co. is set for trial. The action of Chas. T. Wright vs. the Union Nat'l bank of Racine is set for trial on Jan. 2. The F. A. Taylor vs. the International Harvester Co. and John L. Fulton vs. F. L. Preston cases are set for trial. A jury is asked for in certain issues of the action of Julius Baker vs. John extension of Maple avenue. The case on trial today is: Walter Britt vs. Waite Wright, an action tried a year ago and resulting in a disagreement of the jury. It involves a lane leading to the Wright farm which Britt seeks to have closed because it divides two forty-acre tracts belonging to his farm. E. H. Ryan and Charles Pierce represent the plaintiff and Fethers, Jeffris, Mouat and Newhouse, the defendant.

Massachusetts signers of the declaration of independence were Samuel Adams, John Adams, Robert T. Paine and Elbridge Gerry.

Main Point Overlooked.

Many a man whirled in to reform the world, only to discover at last that he didn't know how to reform himself.—Atlanta Constitution.

True Americans Left.

This country still has many things to thank God for, among them being the fact that there are Americans so poor that they haven't the price of their own funerals, but who yet would not change places with rich men who acquired their wealth by thievery and dishonesty.—Los Angeles Times.

Do Amusements Amuse?

Happiness is always unconscious (watch children and puppies at play and you will be convinced of the fact), but amusements, as a rule, render their participants even more irritable and self-conscious.—Lady Violet Greville in the Graphic.

No Tide on the Great Lakes.

There is no appreciable tide on the great lakes. Of course there is bound to be some slight rise and fall as there is in the ocean, but it is so small that it is of no practical importance.

Antiquity of Ropemaking.

Although the name of the first ropemaker and that of the land in which he practiced his art have both been lost to history, Egyptian sculptures prove that the art was practiced at least 2,000 years before the time of Christ.

Rev. J. W. Davis of Elwood, Ind., who was last week re-elected for the fourth time bishop of the Heavenly Recruit churches in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Missouri, has been compelled to abandon his annual trip over his diocese because of injuries sustained in an explosion of kerosene, with which he was trying to start a fire.

George vs. Wm. B. George, Otiellie Baker, Mary Pollard in the matter of the estate of Robert Pollard, deceased; J. A. McEvoy vs. Naoma E. McEvoy, issues of law for the court; Fulton, administrator, vs. F. L. Preston, St. Paul Ry. Co. vs. the city of Janesville, and John B. Ostrander vs. Chas. Damerow.

Chauffeur's Wonderful Story.

Extraordinary things happen at the other end of the telegraph wire. A story, for instance, comes from a small town in Minnesota about lightning striking an electric automobile whose batteries had run out. The stroke recharged the batteries and the occupants of the machine ran it home.

Commission Losses.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—Judge Beetha today rendered a decision against the interstate commerce commission in the case brought by it against the Chicago Great Western railway and seventeen other roads. The commission held that the roads charged rates that were too high.

WOMEN HELP BOLL WEEVIL.

Birds That Are Killed for Their Hates Are the Worst Foes of Insect Pest.

Women's hats and birds' egg collections are helping the destructive boll weevil to multiply. It may reach a point where the feminine world will have to be content with no cotton and plenty of hat feathers, says the New York World.

Experts from the United States government have been studying the decrease of useful birds in Texas, and find that the scissors tail, the worst enemy of the boll weevil, has been butchered right and left for years by people who hunt it for feathers to adorn women's hats. Collectors of birds' eggs have robbed its nests till few are hatched yearly.

Henry Oldys, acting in charge of bird and game preservation for the biological survey of the agricultural department, sent the Texas Audubon society the following facts as to the useful bird mentioned above:

"The scissors-tailed flycatcher (mus-civora forficata) is a bird about the size (in body) of a bluebird, but with a tail nine or ten inches long.

"The bird is conspicuous in flight owing to a habit it possesses of opening and shutting the feathers of the tail with a lateral motion, from which its name of 'scissors-tail' has been given it.

CONGRESSMAN TYNDALL IS TO SEEK ESTABLISHMENT OF A NEW NATIONAL PARK

Will Introduce Motion at Convention of Congress—Wilson Creek Battle Ground is Chosen Spot.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Springfield, Mo., November 20.—Congressman Tyndall, of Missouri, left here for Washington today to be present at the opening of Congress. He carries with him an appeal which will be presented to Congress for an appropriation to establish a national park on the Wilson creek battleground and erect a suitable monument to the memory of Nathaniel P. Lyon, who was killed while leading a charge in that memorable battle of 1861.

Important Dietetic Point.

One writer upon dietetics says that raw nuts should never be eaten except with salt, or in conjunction with fruits. Instinctive obedience to this natural law associates nuts and raisins, walnuts and wine, as naturally as hook and eye, or shovel and tongs. The heavy nut oils demand a corrective in the form of acid or alkali.

Lyon, who was killed while leading a charge in that memorable battle of 1861.

Important Dietetic Point.

One writer upon dietetics says that raw nuts should never be eaten except with salt, or in conjunction with fruits. Instinctive obedience to this natural law associates nuts and raisins, walnuts and wine, as naturally as hook and eye, or shovel and tongs. The heavy nut oils demand a corrective in the form of acid or alkali.
